Q: How do I uninstall all angular modules? I am in the process of writing an uninstallation script, which consists of uninstalling all modules. There is a config file which saves a list of modules I want to uninstall: #For supervisor users importer_user_id=502 Then I run this script: #!/bin/bash DIR=/Applications/supervisor/bin/ cd /Applications/supervisor/uninstall_script/module/ listFile=uninstall_modules.list wc -l /Applications/supervisor/uninstall_script/module/modules-to-remove.lst modulesToRemove=`cat /Applications/supervisor/uninstall_script/module/modules-to-remove.lst` echo "Uninstalling modules" for i in $modulesToRemove do sudo -u $importer_user_id rm -f $i done However I am getting an error: rm: '/Applications/supervisor/uninstall_script/module/nginx-ckeditor' no such file or directory I tried echoing the files out, and noticed that the path is wrong (the path is a relative one, not an absolute one). I tried fixing that path, then rerunning the script, but that didn't work either. I also tried echoing out the path. Instead of the correct path (which is given above), this is what I got, when I echoed it out: /Applications/supervisor/uninstall_script/module/nginx-ckeditor Do you have any idea what's wrong? A: You should always quote variables when they have spaces and you can't use spaces in variable names When you do: modulesToRemove=`cat /Applications/supervisor/uninstall_script/module/modules-to-remove.lst` The type of string that is returned by the cat command is not the same as the type of string used by the list command. When you do: listFile=uninstall_modules.list The list command is trying to create a variable called listFile, which is named list and is meant to store the string undefined. When you do: for i in $modulesToRemove

./data/data' , values = { target = '#routes' } , watch = require('./lib/js/watch') .callback(routes) .arg(values) if (typeof environment !== 'undefined') watch.withEnvironment(function (values) { routes.set(values.target, values.routes); return watch(routes); } }); A: I had a similar problem. You just have to remember, that your application code and the routes definition are asynchronous. Here is how I've solved it : var app = require('express')(); var appRoutes = require('./app/routes'); // Faster syntax : var app = require('express').createServer(appRoutes()); // Needed for this sample app.listen(80); // Configuration : app.get('/', function (req, res) { res.end('App configuration is done.') }) // App Routes app.get('/app/:id', function (req, res) { res.json({ message: 'test' }); }) // Here is how you would attach your event handler app.get('/app/:id', function (req, res) { var name = req.params.id // You can just go ahead and attach your event handler app.listen(1337, function (err) { console.log(err) }) // However you probably want to test it in parallel : setTimeout(function () { // All your code here app.listen(
