A series of classic killing-games now a single experience: Get good at the central puzzle, and you will be rewarded by more powerful weapons, ammo and more. Finish each level and show your friend your score on the 'frontend'. The more you complete, the more you will be rewarded. Key features: - The central feature: A simple design with a number of different weapons and items to play around with, all with different functions. - Play with a friend: Have your friend take the role of the 'hacker'. Give your character a task, pick your weapon, and they will take on the role of the 'virgin'. They will then complete the puzzle in their own fashion. - Play with one another: The two players can share the screen, influencing each other. Your 'virgin' can give your friend a tip, and they can steal the shot. - Challenge complete: Go ahead and complete each level. You will get a new ranking, and you will get more power and items with every new scoring point. Don't forget to play...

Born and bred in the gutter, at the age of 18 their new recording career skyrockets, catapulting them onto the brink of the top ten chart, where they're offered to up and leave their home turf for a big-money deal in Beverly Hills. Now, the Donnas are no longer the band they once were. Their sharp claws have been ripped off, leaving their egos hanging in shreds, their friendships shattered, their creativity drained. The Donnas could no longer be a band. But... Periodically, they'll write again. A lonely ghost of their old selves, remembering the good times, no longer able to access that place where they truly belonged. Can they reconnect? Will they even want to? Coming back is, as far as they're concerned, career suicide. Coma is back and he's brought old friends, new challenges, and a whole new meaning to the word 'loathing' with him. ReviewsThe Donnas: The Storm by GallopanPress Vampires, monsters, and magic, The Donnas' debut album, The Storm, explores the world they call home: Los Angeles. With a lyrical palette inspired by their roots in the world of gritty rock music, The Donnas confront, and hilariously skewer, the dark machinations of the music industry, dating, race, and gender. What's new in Friday The 13th: Killer Puzzle - Episode 7: Wasteland:

POST DATE: November 16th, 2019 On this episode of Kill32rs with the Half-Chick I talk about the first Wastelander, how it's bad as fuck, and if we can trust it. Then I play a Sectoid Pregeneration v1.7 beta. After which I get into my state of mind and talk about worrying about people's mental well-being, and the ways you can indicate it without having to get into too much of the neurodiversity tangent. I also talk about LARPing and how the internet has ruined it for everyone. This was originally supposed to be part one of a three part series where I talk about my first LAN experience. We had some interesting discussions at the table and I hope that you guys enjoy this little diatribe. THIS EPISODE IS BROUGHT TO YOU BY OUR KLEENEX POLARIS HEAT STORE SIGNED BY PUG RACQUE Oh yeah, today's the day... Today's the day that FWG breaks his robot building arm. That's right, the first episode of this week's Any Given Tuesday is titled "Wasteland" because it's Kimimaro's first episode! The problem is, he uses his judgement as a pathfinder to inform the course of the show, but it doesn't appear as if he knows how to make that judgement apply to moving the show to his quality standards. He makes the most outrageous assumptions about the audience that I think I've ever heard in any show: that the audience is comprised of complete idiots, amongst many other assumptions. One of the things we like to do here is review cult films, and most of them don't seem to come from the same internet domain that most of our films are. One of our interests lately is in exploring new territory, so we could at least have some idea of how what we review differs from the experiences of other audiences. I tend to use the podcast I have been putting out myself to explore a space that I think the film from the past will be loosely speaking from. With FWG, I will be picking on something that we've already covered to try to out the extent of the growth from those days. For example: Rowdy Roddy Piper & Kevin Nash The Dirty
