It might not be the most powerful but it's intuitive. You won't use Photoshop for any other purpose than editing images and photos. Here is how to use Photoshop Elements like a pro. How to edit images like a professional in Photoshop Elements How to edit photos? Photoshop Elements is designed for photo editing but it has very important features for editing images like white balance, editing curves, removing unwanted areas on photos, etc. iMovie has the capacity to edit almost every format of videos whether it's still shots or video clips from a certain video. Every photo editing program has its own editing features. Q: Search a string for a specific number So, the way it should be done is: Search the string for a certain number. If it does not find it, it moves to the next character of the string. You can't delete, replace, or add to the string, it can only be modified. So far, I've tried this: string = string.split("1234567890") for item in string: if item == "1234567890": if "1234567890" == item: print("1") else: print("0") else: print("0") I am only looking for 1, since that is what I want to do to the string. I want to find the specific value, then the rest will be deleted. The problem is, nothing gets printed, I don't know what I'm doing wrong. Would anyone be able to point out why this is not working? A: You are splitting the string with single quotes so item doesn't actually get replaced. string = "1234567890" string = string.split("1234567890") If you want to use re, you can try re.search or re.sub: import re # if you want to find it anywhere, just use ^.*: string = re.search(r'^.*1234567890', string) # if you want to find it just in numbers, use \d: string = re.sub(r'\d', '', string) This returns the values 1 because it found 1234567890 somewhere and left the rest. You said that you wanted to remove the results, which is what you must do. However, I don't really understand why you need to split the string, if it isn't meant to be modified, since you said that already, but allways remove what you search for. If you want to leave it, then that's ok, but why? If you know what you want, this must not split the string (this is because you will get the same result
