Four women killed, one injured in San Francisco shooting MARIJA KELLY AFP 13 Min Read SAN FRANCISCO (AFP) - A retired couple and a retired Federal Bureau of Investigation agent were among at least four people killed and one injured in a shooting in San Francisco, police said Sunday. Police said early in the afternoon that three victims were pronounced dead at San Francisco General Hospital, where the victims were pronounced dead around 12.20 pm (0420 GMT). One of those killed was a retired FBI agent and the other two were adults, a police department statement said. The shooting happened outside an apartment complex in the city's Tenderloin district, where the wounded person was being treated by firefighters, police said. "The shooter is dead in the apartment," police said, without giving further details. The area where the incident took place is a rough-and-tumble area known as the Tenderloin District, which includes some of San Francisco's most expensive real estate. President Barack Obama, who was being briefed on the shooting, spoke Sunday at the beginning of his weekly radio address to the nation. "Once again, in America, we have seen an act of senseless violence. In San Francisco, four innocent Americans were shot to death and one is fighting for her life," Obama said. "As I said last week, we do not yet know who these individuals were, what their connection is to the shooter," he said, but "we will find out." The victims were identified by local media reports as Michael Cevoli, 77, his wife Dorothy, 71, both from Los Angeles, and Jimmie Fong, 70, of Palo Alto. Cevoli was a retired psychiatrist who did volunteer work for the Adult Friends of Simon Wiesenthal Center, a Los Angeles-based Jewish human rights group, a center spokesperson said. Fong was a retired FBI agent who was shot dead outside his home earlier on Sunday, the group said.
